I apologize for all the editing Try using URLEncoder.encode(stringToBeEncoded, "UTF-8") to encode the url.. That's incidentally Swedish for a shrimp sandwich, by the way -- very good subject matter indeed.. 0 4 (419 3)Any modern standards compliant browser should handle this code, though, so don't worry that it's a rather sparse test matrix.

GWTs is giving me errors for some sitemaps because the URLs contain character sequences like Å£Â¾, Å£â¸¹, Å£â¸¸, etc.. The special characters are escaped in the XML files (with HTML entities) XML file snippet:If not, How do I do this in Java?The following is the line in my program where I add the URL to the sitemap:** = I'm not sure which ones are causing the error, probably the first two examples.. ## java encoding windows-1252

As with all XML files, any data values (including URLs) must use entity escape codes for the characters: &, ', ", <, >.. But feel free to use my test case: encoding and decoding the word "rÃ¸ksmÃ¸rgÃ¸ys" .. 0 2900 2180Opera 9 0 8502MacOSCamino 2006061318 (1 0 2)Firefox 1 5 0 4Safari 2.. EDIT: Ok i have the problem solved I needed to save my * java file as UTF-8 : OUrI utf 8 encoding javaWhen encoding a String, the following rules apply:For example using UTF-8 as the encoding scheme the string "The string Å¼@foo-bar" would get converted to "The+string+%C3%BC%40foo-bar" because in UTF-8 the character Å¼ is encoded as two bytes C3 (hex) and BC (hex), and the character @ is encoded as one byte 40 (hex).

java unmappable character for encoding windows-1252

it looks like thisand when THE NAME has "Å¼" it doesnt work and puts there "???" but the "???" is not a sign that i can change with replaceAll("str", "str") because my console just doesnt show the char hidden behind it.. That's incidentally Swedish for a shrimp sandwich, by the way -- very good subject matter indeed..
